DISREGARDED ALL HUMAN RESTRAINT

A Hobo Burglar of the Strenuous School.

Somebody has a good joke on somebody else, but exactly who's who could be settled by no lesser tribunal than a rural debating society. Thursday night A. Hobo broke into a store building at the Peterson switch, a few miles south of Tempe, and stole a fine overcoat. Friday morning the facts were reported all along the line, including Maricopa.

Immigration Inspector C. P. Cronin, stationed at Maricopa, was apprised of the incident and carefully inspected all the hobos marooned at that point, and considered himself fortunate in easily spotting the right man. Desiring to keep him over night until he could bring the burglar back on the train, Mr. Cronin put him in the Maricopa jail, after seizing the overcoat, which he marked "exhibit A."

Nobody has any more doubt concerning the security of the Maricopa jail than Mr. Cronin has and he resolved to exercise diligence in adding to its normal strength, so he handcuffed the prisoner and attached leg irons to his running gear. From the latter he passed a chain through a bull ring and attached the end of it to a staple in the floor some distance away.

In the morning he went to greet the prisoner and take his order for breakfast, but all he found was an empty calaboose with the door broken and part of it missing. The prisoner had fled with all his metal ornamentation and all property thereunto appertaining. The Southern Pacific railroad company is congratulating itself that he was not chained to the depot or that would have gone, too.

TO ADD INTEREST.

A little boy was killed on a viaduct in a certain Texas city. A father was trying to describe him to his little son. The child tried to recall the dead child, and, failing, said sorrowfully to his parent: "I wish it had been Paddy O'Hagan; I knew him."

"THE ALASKANS."

Coming to Phoenix after its phenomenal five months' Chicago engagement, the revised edition of "The Alaskans," for which credit is given to Richard F. Carroll and Gus Weinburg, two exceptionally clever producing comedians, the Elks' theater will throw open its doors on Monday night, January 31. The entire book of this meritorious musical comedy has been gone over by Carroll and Weinburg, while several interpolations and catch music—not forgetting half a dozen original songs—have been introduced.

HIS CONCILIATORY WAY.

Mr. and Mrs. Pickaway, although really fond of each other, had frequent quarrels, owing, no doubt, to infirmities of temper on the part of both. Mr. Pickaway was telling his troubles to his elderly maiden aunt.

"I try to be as good a husband to Bertha as I know how to be," he said.

"but we don't seem to get along. It takes so little to irritate her, and when she starts to scolding she never knows when to stop. She takes offense, too, at such little things."

"Then don't say those little things, Joshua," said his aunt. "When she is cross you must try to be conciliatory."

"I am conciliatory, Aunt Bertha," he answered. "I often say to her, Bertha,

$100,000 Is Offered For Discovery of a Consumption Cure

Added impetus has been given the hunt of noted scientists and physicians in all parts of the world for a cure for tuberculosis by the announcement that a prominent Yale alumnus has offered a prize of $100,000 to the first person who discovers a cure for the victims of the great white plague.

It is understood that the Commission will meet four times a year in New York city and pass upon the cures that are submitted for the prize.

One of the conditions is that remedies must have been in use for at least five years, and that there must be testimonials from authoritative persons that cures of tuberculosis have been made with it.

(From Philadelphia North American, Nov. 23, 1909.)

PROOF for Eckman's Alternative

Not claims, not theory, but actual evidence of cured people shows what this wonderful remedy will do.

Better than experiment, better than theory, is the actual evidence of people who have been given up by reputable physicians, and who have been restored to health through the use of

ECKMAN'S ALTERNATIVE

Not alone ordinary throat and lung trouble, but cases that have been pronounced actually tuberculosis (consumption) by authorities have yielded to the extraordinary virtues of this remedy, which is gaining world-wide attention.

HERE IS EVIDENCE.

Philadelphia, Jan. 28, 1909.

Gentlemen: About 19 years ago I began to be troubled with a cough. This gradually became worse. I was losing my appetite and had become thin and weak, so I consulted a physician, who pronounced my disease Tuberculosis or Consumption. Not being satisfied, I was examined by the physicians of the Polytechnic Hospital. I was then advised by the physicians to go to a Consumption Hospital. My reply would not allow me to go until I tried a remedy he had heard of—Eckman's Alternative. Before I had taken the medicine three weeks I had marked relief, and I commenced getting well until my health became normal. I have been in excellent health now over eight years, and I am completely cured.
